

Jim Ward is a 44-year resident of Riverside. He worked for the State of California Department of Corrections for 22 years. While employed with the Department of Corrections, Jim promoted to several positions including correctional officer, counselor, lieutenant, and captain. His duties and responsibilities were diverse and included personnel training officer, program administration and review of personnel training programs, staff supervision and training, conflict mediation and resolution, and designing, implementing, and assessment of departmental policies and procedures. To maintain a base of knowledge and practice, Jim attended Riverside Community College and Loma Linda University, successfully completing over 130 units in correctional science, social science and behavioral sciences with an emphasis on deviant behavior. Since retiring in 1985, Jim has devoted his time to his family and church, community service, and personal property investment and management.
